SCIP Invites Professionals to Volunteer as Educators and Mentors

The success of SCIP's leadership programs for disadvantaged students and young adults depends on the personal involvement of people who are leaders in their own fields.

SCIP welcomes individuals from all areas of professional life to volunteer as educators and mentors to our youth. Whether from the corporate, non-profit, or entrepreneurial arenas, from business or STEM, actively employed or retired, professionals can find opportunities through SCIP to have a positive impact on underprivileged young people.

For instance, volunteers can do the following:

- Share their career and life experiences with SCIP students.
- Participate in panel discussions and/or conduct workshops on a range of career exploration and career preparation topics.
- Invite students to job shadow them.
- Mentor students as they develop resumes, complete job applications, and practice interviewing skills.
- Chaperone educational visits to businesses and cultural and academic institutions.

These are just some of the volunteer opportunities available to professionals. For more information about participating as an educator or mentor in SCIP's programs, please click here to complete our volunteer form.

SCIP looks forward to having you join our team as we further our mission to "Enlighten, Employ, and Empower" disadvantaged young people in the New York metropolitan area.
